We place a Seder Plate at our table as a reminder to discuss certain aspects of the Passover story.

Each item has its own significance.

Maror – The bitter herb

Maror symbolizes the harshness of lives of the Jews in Egypt.

Charoset

A delicious mix of sweet wine, dates, cinnamon and nuts that resembles the mortar used as bricks of the many buildings the Jewish slaves built in Egypt.

Karpas – Parsley

Parsley is a reminder of the green sprouting up all around us during spring and is used to dip into the saltwater.

Beitzah – The egg

Nobody knows! Since eggs are the first item offered to a mourner after a funeral, some say it also evokes a sense of mourning for the destruction of the temple.

Matzah

Matzah is the unleavened bread we eat to remember that when the Jews fled Egypt, they didn't even have time to let the dough rise on their bread. We commemorate this by removing all bread and bread products from our home during Passover.

Elijah's Cup

The fifth ceremonial cup of wine poured during the Seder. It is left untouched in honor of Elijah, who, according to tradition, will arrive one day as an unknown guest to herald the advent of the Messiah. During the Seder dinner, biblical verses are read while the door is briefly opened to welcome Elijah. In this way the Seder dinner not only commemorates the historical redemption from Egyptian bondage of the Jewish people but also calls to mind their future redemption when Elijah and the Messiah shall appear.

Miriam's Cup

Another relatively new Passover tradition is that of Miriam's cup. The cup is filled with water and placed next to Elijah's cup. (Because we think that's sexist, we're filling it with vodka.) Miriam was the sister of Moses and a prophetess in her own right. After the exodus when the Israelites are wandering through the desert, just as Hashem gave them Manna to eat, legend says that a well of water followed Miriam and it was called 'Miriam's Well'. The tradition of Miriam's cup is meant to honor Miriam's role in the story of the Jewish people and the spirit of all women.
