

IDENTITY

Fill Somone's Cup

Contributed by Baumann Aizenstein Family

Source: adapted from The Refugee Crisis Haggadah by Repair the World

We are going to conclude our dinner tonight with a celebratory toast - a l'chaim.

Rather than filling our own cup tonight, though, and focusing on us as individuals, let's fill someone else's cup and recognize that, as a family and group of friends, we have the resources to help each other and those in our community if we are willing to share our resources and collaborate – whether those resources are time, money, skills, or any of the other gifts we bring to one another.

Many of us around the table may already share our resources in different ways - volunteering in our communities, providing pro bono services, donating to charities, or by advocating or lobbying officials. For others we may still be exploring the ways we're hoping to share our resources and are looking for outlets to do so.

We are now going to fill our 4th cup of wine and I want to invite you to fill someone else's cup instead of your own. As you fill someone else's cup, let's share with each other our answer to the following:

How can I help in changing the world?