The second expression of redemption is: I will free you. The Hebrew word V'hitzalti generally refers to a "quick fix," a need for Divine help. It goes without saying that this was the experience of the Exodus – an entire supernatural sequence of events that saw the Jews become a free people overnight. V'hitzalti teaches us that we must never despair; God's salvation and assistance can come faster than the blink of an eye. We must never despair, no matter what our situation. Even when we feel that we are at the bottom, we could very quickly rise to the top.
